ADDRESSES ON THE MOVE ...

MAIL TO REINFORCEMENT UNITS A CHALLENGE TO US ALL ...

THIS is a war of movement. Never before have troops been moved such incredible distances, in so many theatres of war, so quickly. Night and day, thousands of men are in motion, by sea transport, motor truck and air... edging into enemy territory, shifting to keep the element of surprise. Did you ever stop to think what it means, under these trying conditions, to find your friend or relative, and put your letter into his hands?

Yet in spite of the tremendous task involved, tracing men who are moving from reinforcement units in England to group depots in Italy... or from one location to another... or through hospitalization or while on leave... in the face of every sort of war hazard... 31,500,000 letters in addition to parcels and other items, reached our men in 1943.

ALL ABOARD FOR BERLIN!

"There's only one thing that worries me," said Mr. Picobac who was arranging with his bank manager to subscribe for the new Victory Bonds. "The peace won't be dictated at Berlin."

"How's that?" demanded M. Christie, the bank manager.

"There won't be enough of Berlin left," replied Mr. Picobac. "However — we'll put this loan over first and settle the details afterwards. Let's go! Everybody!"

Global War

"GLOBAL WAR" is a term which is frequently used in connection with the present conflict, and as centres of operation shift from one part of the world to another, the aptness of this phrase is increasingly apparent. When war was declared in 1939, and defences were set up along the Maginot Line in France, there were few who anticipated that some of the most decisive battles would be fought in Africa, that British, Canadian and American troops would engage the Germans on the soil of Italy, or that the major British and American holdings in the Pacific would be taken over by Japan. Geography has indeed assumed increasing importance in recent years, and those who have followed the course of the war closely have doubtless added considerably to their knowledge of this subject. Through this interest in strange and distant places, we may be laying the foundations for the broader international understanding which it is hoped will develop after the war.

Are United By Common Bonds

Through the men of our armed forces, who are serving in many parts of the world, Canadians have become more conscious of the bonds which unite us with other members of the British Commonwealth and with our Allies. So far, Canadian forces have not participated in any great numbers in the war against Japan, but as the conflict in Europe nears its climax, there is speculation as to what part we may eventually take in the Pacific operations. Canadian armies are becoming familiar with India, since there is now an air route between these two members of the Empire, and for some time Indian airmen have been here under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan. It seems likely, therefore, that this will be the beginning of a stronger bond of friendship and understanding which may prove of value and importance in later years. Japanese offensive action against India in recent weeks has added interest to developments in that theatre of war.

More Hopeful View Is Held

The vastness of the Pacific, and the great advances made by the Japanese at the beginning of their attack, have made it difficult for observers to predict the length of time it may take to achieve an Allied victory. Commenting on this situation in his last radio address, Mr. Churchill said, "When I spoke a year ago I drew attention to the possibility that there would be a prolonged interval between the collapse of Hitler and the downfall of Japan. I still think there will be an interval, but I don't necessarily think it will be as long an interval as I thought a year ago." This is an encouraging statement, and one which carries a tribute to the United States Forces in the Pacific, the Allied armies in Burma and the Australian and New Zealand troops fighting in New Guinea. It is to be hoped that this phase of the war will be ended soon, but we may be sure that before it is over, we shall hear much more of the Islands of the Pacific, of the area around the Indian Ocean, and of other once distant places, which the swiftly moving events of global war have made no longer remote.

"Wholesome Food Ends Constipation"

"Sure, I'm happy about ALL-BRAN. It really solved my constipation, and so gently. It proved that I could get my bowels moving again without any of that nasty purgative business—which at best gave only temporary relief. So that's why I praise ALL-BRAN — eating it keeps me regular — and it's a wholesome cereal, too!"

Good food, as well as a gentle laxative. That's the big news on ALL-BRAN — if your constipation is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. So simple, too. Just eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly, and drink plenty of water. This pleasant cereal helps to produce smooth-working "bulk" and prepare wastes for easy elimination. Then, to stay regular, you'll enjoy eating ALL-BRAN every day. Remember, it's a cereal — not a medicine. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in 2 handy sizes. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—The school teacher in our village boards at my home. Do we take the canning sugar coupons allowed her or is she supposed to have them for her own use?

A.—There is no Board regulation governing this matter, it is something which should be settled between your boarder and yourself. It also is to be with you next year perhaps you could arrange to give her a share of the preserves you wish to make.

Q.—Where can I exchange "P" coupons for preserve coupons. Are they valid now?

A.—The first 5 "P" coupons will become valid on May 28th. At that time you may exchange them for preserve coupons if you do not want to purchase canning sugar. Take them to your nearest local ration board and they will make the exchange. The second 5 "P" coupons become valid July 6th.

Q.—Must we still turn in used tubes in order to purchase tooth paste and shaving cream?

A.—No, this is no longer necessary. However, everyone has been asked to turn in used tubes whenever possible so that the metal content may be salvaged and re-used.

Q.—Can American visitors obtain ration books if they are visiting in Canada?

A.—Yes. Temporary ration cards are issued to visitors who remain in Canada five days or more. American visitors applying for rations should go to the nearest ration board in the district in which they are staying.

Q.—Has a grocer the right to refuse to sell a person a pound of raisins because he is saving them for special customers?

A.—The display of merchandise does not put a merchant under any obligation to sell — merchants have been asked to distribute available supplies as equitably as possible to their customers. The grocer may have required all his supply of raisins to fill orders from regular customers.

Use Of Lactose

Wonderful Products Are Made By Chemists From MILK

What can a farmer do with milk? He can drink it or feed it to his pigs or make it into cheese or churn it into butter. But the Dominion Department of Agriculture explains the scientist can get a lot more than butter or cheese from a can of milk. He can get drugs, for example, and even fireworks.

These milk products the scientist obtains from milk, sugar or lactose. There's about a quart of crude lactose in every twenty quarts of milk and this is how it is obtained in the one Canadian factory producing it.

First, the factory removes the casein and albumen from the milk. Most of the albumen goes into mixed feeds while casein may appear in dozens of forms from plastics to textiles. What remains of the milk, the whey, is then worked on for lactose.

First, the whey is evaporated in a vacuum pan until it becomes syrupy and milk sugar crystals form in it. The combination of crystals and liquid is then put through a centrifuge and whirled round at high speed to extract most of the moisture. The lactose crystals are then mixed with water and are refined by filtering through charcoal. Again the lactose is extracted and the refined lactose crystals are ready for use.

Confectioners have made use of lactose in candies and fondants. Manufacturers of liquors have found that lactose crystals decorate the inside of a bottle with an attractive frosty effect.

In the war, lactose is used in the preparation of hypodermic tablets, to replace a patient before he is given an anaesthetic. In Canada, lactose is the culture in which is grown the amazing new germ-killer, penicillin. And, strangest of all, this milk by-product is a constituent of incendiary bombs and of flares used by the armed forces for night signalling.

The Return Of Father

Sonny Wasn't Taking Any Orders From His Daddy

A delightfully human story was told by Mrs. G. Abbott, organizing secretary of the Women's Gas Council, at the Bradford Fuel Economy Exhibition. Her four-year-old grandson, who has never known anything but a world at war, was overjoyed when his Daddy came home recently and father and son met for the first time.

In Sonny's view Daddy was the perfect playboy, and he was a delighted small boy who rushed to his mother and announced, "Mummy! What do you think?—Daddy says he'll come and live with us after the war!"

But Sonny's opinions underwent a change when, as midnight approached and he had shown no signs of settling down in his cot, Daddy began to exercise his authority.

"Now look here, we've heard quite enough from you. Lie down and go to sleep!" he ordered.

Ignoring the order, Sonny looked at his mother. "Put him outside, Mummy—we don't want him here," he said—Leeds Yorkshire Post.

Look To Future

Urges Anglo-Soviet Pact With Definite Military Assistance

Sir Edward Grigg, a former parliamentary Undersecretary of State for War, proposed a stronger alliance with Russia, with definite post-war military commitments, as the only means of preventing some future "Pearl Harbor" assault on this island from the continent.

Britain already has a 20-year alliance with the Soviet Union, drawn in May, 1942, providing for the war against Germany and her satellites and for common action to preserve peace after the war. The post-war commitments, however, are vague regarding straight-out military assistance.

The Nazi Way

Man Given Prison Term For Honoring Memory Of Dead Sons

In Belgian Linburg Province lives an old gentleman, Armand de Menton de Horne. One of his sons was executed by the Germans for patriotic activities during this war. Another son was a pilot in the Belgian Air Force in Great Britain. He was shot down during a raid over Germany. The father had masses said in his home town, St. Truiden, and in Brussels, for the repose of his soul. The German Military Court has just sentenced Armand de Menton to six years of hard labor for having arranged these ceremonies to which he gave "the character of anti-German manifestations."

Canada Should Offer Their Open-Handed Hospitality

To British women Canada may seem a country of strange contrasts. Home equipment and home methods are often very different from those to which they are accustomed. So are the social habits to which they are suddenly introduced. But Canada has a reputation for friendliness and open-handed hospitality. These new wives of our boys overseas deserve the best we can offer them.

If your scalp has broken out with ugly surface rashes or irritations — DON'T rub with finger-nails as that only serves to make it worse—and spread it. Go to your drugstore and get a bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil and use this mixed with an equal quantity of olive oil. It's easy to use—rub it in to the roots of the hair. Do this at least once a day and about one fourth day shampoo using a good soap. Soon you'll find this combination starts to work—promoting faster healing. OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

—By—
RUTH GILBERT COCHRAN

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Three things always draw me back to Martha's Vineyard for my summer vacation: The great flat will roses with their heavenly fragrance . . . the soft sea air that blows the cobwebs from my city-dulled brain . . . and my delightful afternoon gossip with Aunt Jane Prentiss.

Aunt Jane—"aunt" by courtesy, as she is to everyone in Vineyard Haven—is sturdy and spry for all her eighty, and her blue-black eyes are usually as bright and mischievous as a robin's. But today as she greeted me across the tea table in her century-old orchard, her eyes were dimmed with a suspicious moisture.

Tears of happiness, she hastened to assure me, piling my plate high with her delicious orange cookies, and pouring delicate China tea into eggshell cups. "I've just come from Amy Lovatt's wedding," she explained, "and I keep thinking of what she said to me when she kissed me good-bye. You remember Amy, don't you?"

"Oh, yes, in the Library. That quiet, mousy little girl with the lovely gray eyes. I say girl, but she isn't exactly young, is she?"

"Thirty-four," snapped Aunt Jane, "and that's the pity of it. But you wouldn't have called her mousy to day. Her eyes were as bright and her cheeks as plums as they were when she came running over here to tell me she was engaged to Wally Haversham twelve years ago. And today when she said, 'Aunt Jane, I've found true love at last, and I owe it all to you,' I felt that those years hadn't been wasted, after all."

"Wally is a handsome rascal with a twinkle in his eye that can turn a sensible girl's heart upside-down and make her absolutely blind to an ardent suitor's faults, but you wouldn't have called her mousy to day. But not Wally . . . he just went on painting pretty pictures of the fishing wharves, and sending them off to New York where they never sold for peanuts, and monopolizing Amy's time while her youth slipped by."

"That girl! 'Poor darling,' she'd say to me. He does work so hard. But his pictures will catch on some day . . . you'll see! If he could just make one big sale . . . he has too much pride to marry me and let me go on working."

"She had such faith in the gump that I thought perhaps it was wrong of me to feel so sorry for Tom Baker, who'd idolized her in his quiet way ever since their high school days."

GARDEN NOTES

Plenty Of Time

There is still plenty of time to have an excellent garden. One gets some personal satisfaction in getting vegetables planted weeks ahead of the neighbors and if all goes well, a thrill out of being able to tell his friends that he has had his first radishes long before the usual season. But extra early planting is a gamble and that is why experts urge that only part of the seed be sown then and the balance reserved for planting at the usual time and later. When planting is spread over weeks in this way there is the solid satisfaction of having the harvest also spread over weeks in the summer and fall.

As a matter of actual statistics, the beginner almost always starts to plant his garden too soon and also stops planting too soon. There is still ample time in most parts of the country for planting all sorts of vegetables, and in fact the tender things like melons, cucumbers, peppers, tomatoes, etc., are best not sown or set out much before this date.

Generally speaking, the amateur is inclined to plant too deep. Seed so planted will not germinate well. The general rule is three times the diameter, which means mere pressing into the soil for fine seed like that of radish, poppy, carrot, etc., and about one or two inches deep for beans and peas. With bulbs and tubers like gladiolus and potatoes, from six to ten inches deep is recommended, the heavier the soil the shallower the planting.

There is not a substitute for good seed. Other factors may be beyond control but the gardener has absolute check over this foundation. Without good seed the garden is going to be a failure.

Must Have Room
A vital job that looks harder than it really is is thinning. No vegetable or flower can develop properly unless it has plenty of room. Small things like carrots need about three inches between, beans about four, corn, three sprouts to the hill. With fine seed much drudgery can be saved by sowing thinly in the first place. With flowers that are grown from seed, thinning is equally important. They must have room or they will grow spindly and break down probably in the first wind storm.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

"GOOD TREASURE"

A good man out of the good treasure of the heart bringeth forth good things.—Matthew 12:35.

It is impossible to live pleasantly without living prudently, and honorably, and justly; or to live prudently, and honorably, and justly, without living pleasantly.—Epicurus.

The serene, silent beauty of a holy life is the most powerful influence in the world, next to the might of the Spirit of God.—Pascal.

The joys of heaven will begin as soon as we attain the character of heaven and do its duties.—Theodore Parker.

The good man's hope is laid far, far beyond the sway of tempers, or the furious sweep of mortal desolation.—W. K. White.

O glorious hope and blessed assurance, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. Christians rejoice in secret, they have a bounty hidden from the world.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Strict Regime

Austere Routine In The Early Life Of Queen Victoria

Queen Victoria was brought up under a regime of remarkable strictness; it is possible, indeed, that this austere routine in early days gave rise to her later zest for simple social pleasures. For as long as possible the knowledge of her position was kept from her, lest pride or vanity should make her unmanageable. Little Victoria was actually twelve years old before she knew that she was to wear a crown, and until she became Queen she never slept a night away from her mother's room. Nor was she allowed to converse with grown-ups, friend, tutor or servant, without consent.—Leeds Yorkshire Post.

"Not a doubt of it," I said. But I didn't mean what she did. "A week went by. I was much better and had just stopped in at Amy's, when she finally got word from Wally. I watched her read the letter . . . Aunt Jane paused dramatically."

Well, go on!" I cried. "Was it Wally she married today?" "Amy didn't show me what Wally wrote," the old lady contradicted me. "But the stricken look on her face was enough to tell me what a tissue of lies it was. He's still in New York. It was Tom, Amy married today."

ALREADY DONE

One of the best Derby race stories—told by Pett Ridge, the novelist—is about a doleful, muffled-up passenger in a train, of whom a fellow-traveller begged an explanation of his melancholy.

"Bought a ticket," said the muffled man. "Derby was a mistake. Sold it for the half-crown (60 cents) I gave for it. Horse comes in first and I might have took eighty-five pounds ($425)."

"Terrible luck," cried the fellow passenger. "Dreadful misfortune. Why, you must feel, almost inclined to cut your throat!" "I've," said the man.

Long Railway Career

Samuel Lees, Locomotive Engineer, Is Retired After 52 Years Of Service

With a record of more than half a century of railroading to his credit, Samuel Lees, locomotive engineer of the Canadian National Railways, has retired under the pension rules of the company. Lees, who is a native Montrealer, began his railway career in 1852 with the Montreal Warehousing Company, now a subsidiary of the National System, transferring to the motive power department of the Grand Trunk Railway in 1898 and becoming a locomotive engineer in 1904.

The highlight of his fifty-two years of service came in 1930 when he was at the throttle of the National's big 6400 type engine which hauled the Royal Train carrying Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth from Ottawa to Brockville on their tour of Canada. When the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, later Their Majesties King George V and Queen Mary, came to Canada in 1901 to officiate at the opening ceremonies of the Victoria Bridge, Mr. Lees was fireman on the train which brought them to Montreal.

Teachers And Taxes

Present Method Of Financing Education By Taxes Comes Hard In Rural Areas

The biggest obstacle to decent remuneration for teachers is the present narrow method of financing education by realty taxes alone. This may work out fairly well in thickly settled districts but it is a milestone around the necks of the sparsely populated, poorer districts, especially in depression times. "Although as a matter of fact the municipalities right across Canada are in better financial shape at the moment than they have been for years and all of them could do something toward increasing the salaries of their teachers,"—Winnipeg Tribune.

IDEA WAS GOOD

Stanley Koselak, a war worker, received $584 from Bendix Aviation Corp. at South Bend, Ind., for developing an automatic switch which prevents precision drills from breaking in the manufacture of carburetors. The drill, which broke when castings moved out of adjustment, is stopped automatically if a casting moves as much as the width of a shoe of paper.

Seized Allied Planes

Say Neutrals Are Putting Some Of These Into Commission

Talks between Allies and neutrals may include the question of air forces some neutrals are building up with Allied aircraft seized on their territory, writes Colin Beddall, Daily Mail air correspondent.

"These planes include a whole range of military types from fighters to bombers which have been forced to land through distress of one kind or another," he wrote.

"Blitz's air force, for instance, now is flying Spitfires and Hurricanes and fleet air arm Martlets and Hudsons. "Spain has put into commission a number of flying fortresses and Sweden has even made plans to open an airline to Britain with converted Liberator bombers forced down on its territory."

"Rather than meet the heavy charges which would accrue for aircraft stored throughout the war, belligerent countries have made a practice of selling impounded machines to the country concerned."

King's Messengers

Reported That They Are Now Seeking More Pay

The London Evening News reported that the King's Messengers are seeking a pay increase.

Their job is to carry despatches from the Foreign Office to British embassies and legations abroad. Qualifications included physical fitness, fluent knowledge of three languages, ability to swim and ride, and to be able to draw quickly and shoot straight. Moreover, they must live within three miles of the Foreign Office.

The Messengers are recruited mainly from the Foreign Office's decoding staff, but they also include retired Army, Navy and Air Force officers.

Their maximum pay is $2,400 a year.

ODD BITS

ABOUT OUR ARMED FORCES

Youthful Canadians who enlist in the Canadian Technical Training Corps of the Canadian Army will be trained in four centres, one in the West, one in Central Canada, one in the Maritimes, and a French Speaking centre in eastern Quebec.

Of the 19,097 Canadian casualties in the first four years of the war, 9,209 were killed or died of wounds and injuries, 2,745 were missing, 3,883 wounded and 4,360 are prisoners of war.

An information room at Camp Shilo, Man. contains complete and detailed models of Allied and enemy tanks, planes, large coloured charts of enemy uniforms of all ranks and all branches of the service, and charts showing in detail enemy weapons.

National Defence Headquarters announce that under the regulations governing wearing of civilian clothing by Army personnel, both officers and other ranks are permitted to wear "civies" while taking part in athletic exercises for which a special dress is necessary.

Equipment in today's warfare includes a tremendous amount of electrical and mechanical equipment. Besides a multiplicity of tanks and wheeled vehicles, there are radio and radar, radiolocation, fire control and kindred instruments, coast defence and searchlight equipment, machine guns and other small arms and even watches.

Twenty officers of the Canadian Army will obtain first-hand information on jungle warfare. C.P.R. LOCOMOTIVES IN ART

The tempo of wartime activity in a great railway shop and ocean liners sailing peacefully over calm waters present an interesting study in contrasts at an exhibit of all paintings by Adrien Hebert, P.C.A., now on display in the Osborne street entrance show cases of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Windsor station at Montreal.

These subjects, rarely associated with the realm of art, have been given effective and interesting treatment by Mr. Hebert. One of the more vital operations of the shop men in wartime—the motives—has been forcefully portrayed in two of the paintings, one of which is shown in the accompanying illustration while the shops' flaming forges with their attending blacksmiths hard at work, inspired the theme of two others.

Other features of the exhibit include colorful portrayals of Canadian Pacific liners shown peacefully at anchor in Montreal Harbor or sailing sufficiently close to port to show an effective background of smaller ships or landseas.

Born in Paris, of Canadian parentage, Mr. Hebert began his career at an early age. A fellow of the Royal Society of Arts and Manufactures of London, he has exhibited at the Spring Exhibition in Montreal and at the Royal Canadian Academy, having been elected an academicien in 1941. One of his pictures was acquired by the Musee d'Art Moderne, and another by the Musee de Nimes, during a Paris exhibition of his works.

Mr. Hebert has other pictures in Le Musee de la Province de Quebec, one belonging to the Art Association of Montreal, one in the National Gallery at Ottawa, and others in private collections.

The People of
CHINOOK DISTRICT
Put Victory First -- Buy
VICTORY BONDS

The Government of the Dominion of Canada is again appealing to you to subscribe to the 6th Victory Loan. You have done so well in supporting the previous Loans, and we are sure you will not let our Fighting Force down, this is your opportunity and responsibility to stand back of them, in the great events, that are to come. You are not asked to give anything only to Save and Lend. The Government is paying you interest on your money. This is not much to ask when we think of what thousands of our fighting forces, have done, and thousands more of armed forces will do, give everything, even their very lives, that we may enjoy our democratic way of living.

Does our small sacrifices in refraining from buying something we need, or in giving up some of our pleasure etc. to enable us to buy more Bonds? Compare with this.

Let us back them to the very limit of our financial resources. Ask yourself the question, Have I done my share in backing their effort with my purchase of Victory Bonds? If not you are letting our Fighting Forces down and you are not playing the game.
